Initial Build Review

All the content is great! The formatting just needs to be fleshed out a bit.

For the longer pages (history in particular), we talked about changing up the layout a bit. Some photos can be full bleed but some can be in smaller rectangles floating in or around the text. This will also help to accommodate lower quality photos. Some pages can also become darker green or black to make this look more seamless.

Be sure to add hover and active states to navigation buttons. These don't have to be complicated. For the main "Glass Delusion" button though, try to incorporate a cracking/shattering effect in the hover and active states.

Add a footer to each page to signal the end of content.

Start working on mobile view. Transition to mobile should be pretty easy since most of the content will exist in a one column layout.
